

Cindy Murphy Kelley is the Executive Director of Chatham Savannah Authority for the Homeless (CSAH). Ms. Kelley has been leading nonprofit organizations since 1996. She has lead organizations ranging in size from $300,000 to $10 million. Most of her work has been done in the human services area and includes early childhood education, serving children with special needs, working with homeless families and individuals and serving those struggling with mental illness and substance abuse. Ms. Kelley has lead an international nonprofit organization and taught for ten years in a graduate program specializing in nonprofit management. She has a Master of Business Administration and an undergraduate degree in Human Services Administration.

Ms. Kelley believes in the importance of government, business and nonprofits working together to improve the community for all residents. She believes that diverse residents strengthen our community and allow for creative approaches to needed change. She has two grown sons and a stepdaughter. Ms. Kelley lives with her husband Ken and her dog Senga in downtown Savannah, Georgia.
